3000 FT. SECOND GROWTH EASTERN ASH PLANK
For sale by HENRY LAW

A TRIBUTE TO NEW ENGLAND.—The Chicago Tribune, in the course of an eloquent article, provoked by the present secession nonsense about leaving New England out in the cold, says:

It is, we say, too late to quarrel about the character of the Puritans, because, were his tory dumb, there stand the six States of New England, everlasting monuments for the perpetuation of the memory of the great qualities of the men who built on a Puritan basis. And in spite of the old story by which the pioneers of the Mayflower have been assailed, in spite of that kind of criticism which in sneering at long prayers forgets the godliness of the men who made them, and that, in estimating characters, take account of the blemishes only, and converts the peculiarities of an era into the special vices of the individuals who flourished therein; in spite of despotic reaction against what New England has taught and lived, the fact remains, and is now confessed by all the world

That nowhere does God's sun shine upon any political community, containing an equal number of people, among whom liberty is so secure;

Among whom law and justice are so impartially administered;

Among whom property is so well guarded;

Among whom education is so universally diffused;

Among whom there is such care for the growth and development of the religious sentiment;

Among whom there are so few poor;

Among whom there is such untiring, comprehensive and healthy philanthropy;

Among whom there is such an amount of wealth so equally distributed;

Among whom there is such promise of physical progress;

Among whom the ownership of land in fee simple is so universal;

Among whom labor is so much respected, and so well rewarded;

Among whom progress, in all that purifies and ennobles mankind, is so rapid;

Among whom women are so honored, or so virtuous;

Among whom government bears so easily and is so cheaply administered;

Among whom happiness in the State, in the family, and in the individual is so firmly founded on an indestructible basis.

REMARKABLE TENACITY TO LIFE.—It is said that some of our officers observed, through a field glass, at one of the recent heavy battles fought, a Colonel of a rebel regiment riding along in front of his men, gracefully waving his sword and cheering them on. A cannon ball came along and took his head smooth off, but the headless trunk still rode on, and commanded the regiment throughout the engagement, which lasted several hours! But the most remarkable thing is, that the head of the officer was seen to roll along under the hoofs of his horse, giving orders to the men!

TUESDAY MORNING MARCH 3 1863

The Emancipation Proclamation

From the tone of the democratic press in Oregon—including even some of that part of it which has professed to be loyal—upon the President's Proclamation, one might suppose that its conductors regarded the freedom of the slaves of rebels as a great personal wrong They seem to love slavery and to love it so much that they hate those who do not agree with them, and even wish the Government to defend and sustain it, though by so doing the nation destroys itself, while giving to the rebellion a tower of strength—its main, its only hope, without which it must crumble to pieces

The negro in bondage is their supreme admiration, and to keep him there, they demand the interference and power of the Government—for this purpose, they welcome the prolongation of the war national dishonor and dismemberment and even utter overthrow They will not see that it is not in behalf of the black race that we are waging the most desperate warfare ever known in the world's history—though it seems to us much more creditable to fight that negroes may be free than to make shameful peace so that the foul stain of slavery may longer and forever disgrace the honor of a nation, boasting of its liberty forgetting that emancipation is but an incident and a necessity, if we desire to crush the rebellion, they insist that it is an abolition purpose, and inspired by the demon spirit of secession, they are anxiously endeavoring to sow dissension among loyal men, to breed discontent, and to bind the free State again in the fetters of slavery, and cast it down once more a willing, captive sacrifice to that infernal democracy which brought the country to its present sad position, and so nearly ruined it forever Whether they shall or not be successful in their unholy schemes, depends upon the intelligence of the people—upon the strength of their loyalty, upon their power of resistance to the deceptive cries of abolition and negro loving! If the free citizens of Oregon love slavery for the sake of rebels better than the emancipation of slaves for the sake of the Union, they will of course follow these blind leaders on their way to national infamy and ruin, if they are true and loyal, they will shake off the trammels of these pro slavery leaders and prefer the sensible teachings of such democrats as Forney, who thus defends and justifies the proclamation

The men who are fighting our battles will welcome emancipation, and as a war measure, we shall see its great value It takes away that false sentiment that makes the negro a silent spectator of a war whose hardships and penalties have been kept from him It is a blow at the great labor system which is the strength of the rebellion It tells our soldiers that, while they give their lives to the cause of the Union, the lives of their enemies cannot be sheltered by four millions of another race It makes their war a war for ideas The children who come after them will bless God that their fathers ennobled America when they gave their blood for its salvation I cannot, as I contemplate this great deed, restrain an enthusiasm which makes me see the future full of glory and prosperity I shall feel prouder of my name as an American when I know that it does not involve an apology or a blush The South and the North will feel the beneficent effects of this measure For when the wars are over and men are at peace, we shall truly realize the blessed deed that we now record, we shall see that amid the darkness the gloom, the distracting doubts, the opposition, the calumny—amid a whirlwind of smoke, and blood, and destruction—amid scenes that no mortal could control or command, God himself from his empyrean and infinite dwelling place moved the hand and heart of Abraham Lincoln He has written Liberty on the scroll of this wonderful and magnificent century Men will bless and honor him for it But the present has many trials before the future brings its triumphs Let us not shout and clap our hands until the joy is really accomplished. We enter upon our new destiny with many sacrifices to make We must strengthen the hands of the President in his great work—we must share the troubles and responsibilities it entails Harmony of sentiment—devotion to the Union—uncomplaining loyalty—hostility to treason—and an unswerving support of the Administration—these are our duties, and these we must perform. Then we can truly claim a share in the glory and triumph that is now approaching—then we can fully realize the joys of our Happy New Year

At the battle of Fredericksburg, a Fire Zouave—a stout, athletic fellow came rushing down to one of the bridges, and attempted to run over it A Lieutenant checked him with his drawn sword "Stop sir go back to your regiment you infernal coward you are not wounded" "For heaven's sake let me pass!" implored the fugitive "I know I'm not wounded, but I'm fearfully demoralized" The novelty of this appeal won the day The Fire Zouave was allowed to go as far from under the fire as he chose

We are indebted to Wells Fargo & Co for full files of Upper Columbia papers Also to S J McCormick for favors in his line

From the Upper Columbia—We received our usual upper country papers by the boat last night From the Walla Walla Statesman we take the following

A report has lately been in circulation that the miners at Boise are already beginning to anticipate trouble with the Snake Indians The Indians, it is said, have begun their thieving operations, stealing horses mules and such other property from miners and others as they can lay their hands upon A number of them have been prowling around the valleys adjacent to the Boise mines all winter In one instance a pack train consisting of [illegible] animals was stolen Two men—one known as Mountain Jack went out in search for the train and in traveling along the river saw a couple of Indians on the opposite side An effort was made by the whites—both of whom talked the Snake tongue—to induce the Indians to cross the river to them the Indians declined and requested the whites to cross to them and they declined also At night both parties camped upon the opposite banks of the river The white men—accustomed to mountain life and the habits of the Indians—removed some distance from the camp fire when they retired for the night fearing unless they did so the Indians would cross in the night and take their lives They had been gone but a short time when the Indians were discovered crawling up to the camp fire, evidently with the intention of murdering or stealing. They fired at the Indians and killed them One, however lived long enough to tell where the stolen animals were secreted which was some seventy miles distant and he also stated that there was a considerable band of Indians there On the following day the two white men got the horses which the Indians had been riding and they proved to belong to the stolen train The above is the story of the men who went in search of the Indians Another story goes that no Indians have been seen in the vicinity of the mines, and that the animals were stolen by the white men who are playing the same game that was practised by the ranchmen in the vicinity of Florence last summer A meeting has been held by the miners of Placerville, and they have resolved to break up a ranch kept somewhere near the mines This latter story is most likely true

Charley Harper has met a deserved fate at the hands of the people at Colville Harper is the man who was reported hung at the Lapwai last fall and was supposed to be one of the gang known as "road agents," who infested the country between Lewiston and the mines last summer

Mr S B Fargo of this city has been appointed deputy U S Marshal for this Judicial District

Reports from the bars of Salmon river say that the miners have been at work there all winter

Wm Buntin gave himself up to the authorities and had an examination for the killing of Daniel Cogswell and was acquitted, it appearing in the testimony produced on the trial that he committed the act in self-defense

An impression has obtained currency that an order for the establishment of a military post at Boise has been issued We are informed that such is not the case, though the establishment of a post there has been recommended by the principal officers in command of this department, and there is every probability that such an order will be issued soon

Quite a number of persons in this valley are making preparations to start for the Bitter Root and Beaver Head mines, in a few days The main attraction however is in the direction of Boise

Several of the military companies stationed at the post here will leave for the plains in the vicinity of forts Boise and Hall in five or six weeks They go out as scouting parties, and for the protection of miners and emigrants from Indian depredations

The mail carriers to Colville have had much difficulty in getting into that place with the mails, on account of the deep snow from Spokane river to Colville—they having to carry the mail in on their backs One of the carriers has had his feet badly frozen and is laid up on the route

The Mountaineer says that at last accounts the road over the Blue Mountains was snowed in, and a large number of miners were at the foot of the mountains, waiting an opportunity to cross The change in the temperature would cause the snow to melt rapidly and by this time without doubt the road is open

A Good Word for Army Contractors.—As regards the contractors who have supplied the Government with materials of war for the army, we are inclined to think that generally they are a much abused class of men They have enabled us to carry on a great war for which in the outset we had made no provision Their capital, industry and enterprise have created the means of doing all this They have procured arms, powder, shot, shell, iron armature suitable goods to clothe the soldiers artillery, horses, medicines ambulances wagons pontoons and in short everything we needed Had the object of abuse heaped upon these men been accomplished, the business of furnishing supplies to the army would have become infamous and respectable capitalists would have been frightened away from such an odious and disreputable pursuit, leaving it only to sharpers

Despite all the lies artfully put in circulation concerning the character of the articles supplied foreign critics have unanimously agreed that no army in the world was ever better fed clothed armed equipped shod or cared for than ours Our artillery is excellent, our muskets are unsurpassed and uniforms serviceable and the soldiers always have excellent provisions made for them It is true that some cases have occurred deserving of severe censure and punishment such as Vanderbilt's fraud with the transports of the Banks expedition But when we consider the magnitude of the operations incident to maintaining our forces in this war, these affairs do not by any means characterize the general operations of the supply and contract departments Moreover by making these sweeping charges upon the whole service, we prevent the proper punishment of the cases which are prominent and which ought to be immediately dealt with —Philadelphia North American

The Buffalo Courier, Democratic comment ing upon Mr Vallandigham's late speech says that his mode of ending the war and preserving the national Unity, is absurdly impracticable Vallandigham is the wedge that will divide again the Democratic organization, leaving the rebel sympathizers alone to bear the party name Honest war Democrats in less than a year's time, will be generally acting with the Union party

From the Sentinel we learn that Wm Riley who was found guilty of murder in the second degree was sentenced by Judge Prim to imprisonment for life The prisoner when he received his sentence was unimpassioned and its announcement created not even a momentary tremor

Legal Tender Notes this Day----65 cents.

THE NAVY.—We learn with pleasure that Rev Elkanah Walker of Forest Grove, will deliver an address upon the present condition of the Navy of the United States, on some evening next week of which due notice will be given Mr Walker is well known as one of the earliest and most intelligent residents of Oregon, who is fully competent to discuss any subject, and especially the one suggested, to which he has given much anxious and patriotic attention We hope the citizens of Portland will generally hear the address

THE COURTS.—The March term of the County Court was commenced yesterday, but as the Circuit Court was still in session, no business was transacted other than hearing motions, when the Court adjourned until next Saturday The Circuit Court will meet this morning at nine o'clock.

ANNUAL BALL.—The annual ball of the Portland Hebrew Benevolent Association will be held on next Thursday evening at the Gymnasium. It should be well attended, as well for the support the Society deserves as the happy time which will undoubtedly be had by all who participate.

DISLOYALISTS REBUKED.—A correspondent of the N. Y Tribune, writing from Murfreesboro, January 22d, has the following

A meeting of officers of about all the Indiana regiments in this army was held to day and strong resolutions were adopted unanimously, denouncing the disloyal course of the Butternuts of the Indiana Legislature, also, complimenting Gov. Morton for his energy and patriotism, declaring that the Union shall be preserved unconditionally, and that the soldiers of Indiana will devote their means and their lives to the Union. The resolutions were drawn by Colonel Hunter of the Eighty second Indiana regiment, a democrat who with Col Goodin, of the Twenty-second Indiana and other prominent democrats, made violent speeches denouncing treason in the Indiana Legislature, and at the North They also pledged themselves that there is not an Indiana soldier whose garments wetted the field of battle, who will not endorse the resolutions and who will not fight the enemies of the Union, North and South, to the death The resolutions will be acted upon by each regiment, and forwarded, through a committee of officers, to the Indiana Legislature Colonel Goodin denounced the Indiana Butternuts as [illegible] of rascals

One hundred and twenty men of Colonel [illegible]'s brigade, and thirty five wagons, while foraging yesterday, surrendered to a small force of the enemy. The men were loafing with the train with unloaded muskets

[illegible]—THE FIRE-PROOF STONE WAREHOUSE, opposite [illegible] House, is the only building "not made of wood," at the Dalles, where goods are taken on STORAGE. All other houses that take goods on storage are wooden buildings and in exposed parts of the town liable to the risk of fire. The subscriber assures his patrons that his charges are but $1 50 per ton per month storage and although storage in wooden buildings is $1 00 per ton yet the public cannot fail to perceive the advantages the subscriber possesses over other warehouses of this place

[illegible] Coughs.—The sudden changes of our climate are [illegible] PULMONARY, BRONCHIAL and ASTHMATIC AFFECTIONS. Experience having proved that simple remedies often act speedily and certainly when taken in the early stage of the disease, recourse should at once be had to "Brown's Bronchial Troches," or Lozenges, let the Cold, Cough, or Irritation of the Throat be ever so slight, as by this precaution a more serious attack may be effectually warded off. PUBLIC SPEAKERS and SINGERS will find them effectual for clearing and strengthening the voice See advertisement dec16daw3m

White's Fever and Ague Drops---For the cure of AGUE, PANAMA FEVER, NEURALGIA and GENERAL DEBILITY

This medicine has been used in private practice for many years with great success Indeed in no instance has it failed to effect a speedy cure, in Ague especially one bottle having been found sufficient in most cases and in none are more than two bottles required

A great number of testimonials could be given to verify these statements, but the proprietor prefers relying upon the merits of the medicine alone A cure is guaranteed in nine cases out of ten

Skating into Matrimony

What a clear cold day it was! the earth all wrapped in white sparkling snow—the frozen river gleaming in the distance like a ribbon of steel. How the wind shook the cedar boughs drooping over the stained glass casements of Mr Arkwright's library—but it could gain no entrance to the pleasant room, with its crimson walls and ruby velvet carpet, and polished grate heaped high with glowing anthracite!

"Tap tap!" came softly to the door and Mr. Arkwright looked up from his book.

"Come in!"

"It's only me sir! I called to see if Miss Ariel would like to drive down to the river and look at the skaters this afternoon."

"Look at them!" repeated Mr Arkwright, good humoredly. "Why she's one of the performers, instead of being a spectator! She went down an hour ago, with Tom Havens!"

"Tom Havens!"

Mr Felix Fetherbee's whiskered under jaw dropped—he fingered nervously at his eye glass.

"Why yes—Tom's rather handy on a pair of skates, and he's been teaching my daughter. I'm glad you are here, Felix," added Mr Arkwright, "for to tell the truth, I don't exactly like Ariel to be so much with Mr Havens. Not but what he's a fine, frank young fellow but then you know he depends solely on his profession, and—O, well you understand all these things, Fetherbee!"

"Certainly, sir," said Felix the perfumed.

"And I've suspected this long while that you were a little interested in Ariel."

"I adore her, sir," said Felix energetically.

"Then off to the river with you quicker than a flash, my boy! Of course you skate?"

"O, yes, sir—that is, I've never tried, but it's easy enough I don't doubt."

Mr. Arkwright raised his brows rather doubtfully, but Felix had disappeared. The idea of Ariel Arkwright's skating with Thomas Havens drove him wild!

* * * * * * *

There they were, in the centre of the merry multitude of skaters! Felix recognized them with a vengeful pang as he scrambled down the slippery bank—Tom Haven's fur cap and straight active figure—Ariel Arkwright's golden, floating curls and brilliant color.

"Hanged if I don't have some of this fun!" muttered Felix. "Hallo, Dormer! do you know where a fellow can raise a pair of skates?"

"You may take mine, if you choose," groaned the young man addressed, who was limping towards the shore, rubbing his abraded elbows.

"I'm very much obliged to you."

"Oh, not at all!" said Mr Dormer, thinking within himself that Felix Fetherbee would not be so very much obliged after he became acquainted with the slippery nature of ice.

"Hallo, Fetherbee!" hailed Havens in a clear, loud voice as he shot up to the shore hand in hand with that dimpled, panting radiant little Ariel. "Are you going to join us?"

"Yes," said Felix, importantly jerking his straps. "Mr Arkwright requested me to come down and take charge of Miss Ariel!"

"Take charge of me!" ejaculated the young lady, while Tom opened his black eyes wide. "Indeed, it isn't necessary. I don't wish to trouble you, Mr Fetherbee!"

"No trouble at all. What does make these things so shaky!"

"It's because you have not screwed them on," said Havens. "Shall I assist you?"

But Felix scornfully rejected the friendly overtures of his rival.

"You'd better just take hold of my hand—I'm afraid you're new to skates!" persisted Tom, as Felix rose totteringly to his feet.

"No, I thank you," said Felix, clutching at the shore as those treacherous steel runners walked off of themselves, taking his feet with them and landing the rest of him on the ice with an unpleasant shock.

"Oh, dear!" said Ariel, demurely, "I'm afraid you're hurt!"

"Pray let me help you up," said Tom.

"I—am—not—a—bit—hurt!" gasped Felix, spasmodically rubbing the back of his head, as Havens set him skillfully on his feet.

"Now you're all right!" encouraged Tom. "Hallo! there you go again! You're in too great a hurry, Mr Fetherbee!"

"It isn't me!" gasped Felix, hanging to a pine-branch in abject terror, "it's these confounded slippery skates. It may be great fun, but I must confess I don't see it."

"Oh, you'll alter your mind soon," said Tom. "Just see how simple it is."

Away he glided in marvellous curves and angles, and came up again, with sparkling eyes and flushed cheeks.

"Ariel, shall we try again?"

"Excuse me, sir," said Felix loftily. "Mr Arkwright wished that I should skate with Miss Ariel."

"As she don't purpose skating on the palms of her hands or the back of her head, I don't see that your plan is practicable," said Tom provokingly, as he and Ariel vanished.

"Hang these skates!" said Felix, "they won't stand still! Well, if Tom Havens can scud about in that fashion, I don't see why I can't. Here goes!"

And Felix, rashly desperate, "struck out," as he had seen Havens do. Alas! for our hero—blindly confident, he came to grief, with his nose prone against the ice.

It isn't agreeable for any young man to have the damsel of his adoration behold him in a sitting posture on the ice, staring hopelessly around with his hat knocked in and his coat-sleeves badly torn. So Fetherbee felt as Ariel shot by him, leaning on Tom Haven's arm, and calling out:

"Tell papa, I'll be home before dark!"

"Miss Arkwright!" he shouted. "Miss Arkwright!"

No answer—she was gone.

Could he but have seen her darting over the ice, still on Tom Haven's protecting arm—past the solemn pine thickets—under the shadows of still promontories—miles flying past like inches. Could he have heard Tom's whisper:

"Courage, love, we are almost there!"

There—but we anticipate.

Sunset glowed redly across the scene as Felix crawled stiff and sore up the bank.

"O, my head, my bones!" he groaned. "Take your skates, Dormer. I shan't borrow 'em again, you may depend."

"Well, where's Ariel?" said Mr Arkwright, as Felix stumbled into the library.

"I don't know, sir, but one thing I do know."

The extent of Mr Fetherbee's knowledge remained a mystery, for at the same moment another door opened, and Ariel tripped in all blushing, followed by Tom the audacious.

"Papa, you will forgive me I know."

"There's no help for it now," added Tom.

"Eh!" ejaculated Mr. Arkwright.

"Papa! I'm married to Tom. We skated down to the minister's—and"

Then there came a shower of tears—then kisses—and ultimately, a free pardon, of course. And not until this stage of affairs was reached, did they remark the absence of Mr Fetherbee.

It was just as well however—since Tom and Ariel had skated into matrimony, his little comedy was played out.

About 22,[illegible] emigrants have landed in Quebec during the past year. This is a large excess over former years.

Proclamation by the Governor

EXECUTIVE OFFICE, PORTLAND, OREGON, }
January 6, 1863. }

By the President of the United States, through Brigadier General George Wright commanding the Department of the Pacific, and Brigadier General Benjamin Alvord commanding the District of Oregon, I have been requested to raise six additional companies required to complete the 1st Regiment of Cavalry Oregon Volunteers. They will be needed the coming Spring on the frontiers of this State and Washington Territory and for an expedition against the Snake Indians who have so long been mercilessly engaged in robbing emigrants and murdering our fellow citizens. I cannot doubt that the citizens of Oregon, who have always promptly responded to any demand for their military services, will in like manner respond to this call, thereby showing their loyalty to the Government and aiding in chastising marauding bands of Indians which infest our frontiers.

The enlisted men, when mounted, will be supplied with horses by the United States, it being understood that they will be mounted or not, as shall be deemed advisable by the Government.

Propositions to raise a whole company which will furnish their own horses and horse equipments, may be entertained. The men are in such cases entitled to forty cents a day for the use and risk of their horses and horse equipments.

Each company will consist of one hundred enlisted men and when mustered into the service of the United States to serve for three years, unless sooner discharged.

Recruiting offices will be immediately opened at Portland, Dalles City, and perhaps at other places. By the Governor.
